

Herald Photo/Brian Tregaskis

Randy Horrocks drives an off-road vehicle in Little Deer Creek Canyon, now in danger of being closed to the public.

mpts request to close canyon

By PATRICK CHRISTIAN Herald Staff Writer

Wild parties and loud off-road vehicles up Provo Canyon have led some fed-up neighbors to clamor for the closure of a popular dirt road.

The multiple stream crossings the road makes across Little Deer Creek and challenging obstacles make the road popular with off-road motor vehicle enthusiasts and mountain bicyclists.

At the top termination of the dirt road is Cascade Springs, a state park and popular tourist spot. At the bottom, the road ends at the junction of Provo Canyon Road (U.S. 189) near the Deer Creek Dam in Wasatch County.

But some residents who live in three homes near the bottom want Utah Department of Transporation employees to to block off the road — especially near the highway.

John and Jeanie Offret live in one of the three houses near Deer Creek Dam.

"There are loud and wild parties at the park near our homes," said Mrs. Offret.

She was speaking of a small unimproved park, just north of the Heber Creeper Railroad tracks. It's located close to the three homes.

Offret said she and other residents are concerned with the loud noise from partygoers, motorcycles and people shooting handguns and rifles. She has small children and said parties are particularly annoying. They often last all night.

Many who use the Little Deer Creek road also litter the area, she said.

The residents have been quietly urging authorities toclose the road without fanfare.

Dan Nelson, director of District 6 of the Utah Department of Transportation, said he was contacted by Mrs. Offrett and sympathetic to her concerns. His district oversees U.S. 189.

But he said so far he has not decided whether to close the dirt road at its junction with U.S. 189.

Nelson said he told the residents to get letters from the property owners in the Little Deer Creek area - having them ask him to close the road.

Nelson said it wouldn't take a public hearing if the road were a private road and that he could close it if he felt that's what those who owned the property wanted.

Mrs. Offret said Friday that those who owned the three houses did not own the land along Little Deer Creek, but were trying to identify the owners.

One of the major owners is the Provo River Water Users Association.

Jack Gardner, director of the association, said it does own land in the Little Deer Creek area between Cascade Springs and U.S. 189. He also said there are others who own land there.

The association's land is leased to sheep ranchers who graze sheep there.

So far none of the the residents of the three homes have contacted Gardner about permission to close the road, but he said he willing to grant permission. One of his emploees lives in the neighborhood.

Al Clayborn, superintendent of Deer Creek State Park, said the state owns the small park near the three homes. But he said no improvements have been made in

(See CANYON, Page A2)

II IN GRATIESS HIE BLANT ussels headquarters. A date has t been fixed. The official Soviet news agency ss said that at a meeting be-een Woerner and Soviet Foreign nister Eduard A. Shevardnadze, th sides had agreed that the ATO chief's visit "was a symbol that the Cold War has ended, d Europe is entering a new peri-Shevardnadze later met Kohl at a pscow airport. Tass said. Kohl ll hold talks with Gorbachev on inday in Stavropol, the Soviet ader's home region.

to a sense of insecurity in bulgaria, proposed a non-aggression declaration to the Soviet-led Warsaw Pact. "There is a clear coincidence in the approach set out by the alliance in London and the views of the Soviet leadership," Woerner said. "The hand of friendship has been extended on both sides, and there is agreement on building a new relationship." Woerner said he told Gorbachev and Shevardnadze that NATO sought cooperation with the Soviet Union and that "our alliance does not look upon you as an adversary but as a future partner."

UII & MCH SWAL

scaffolding erected to nasten freeway opening teeen downtown Los Angeles and LOS ANGELES (AP) — Workers gree fire and was threatening the llapse of a stretch of downtown eeway. The 1½-mile stretch of the Hollyood Freeway was closed for a cond day because of fears it ould collapse under the vibrations cars and trucks.

ected metal scaffolding Saturday

shore up a subway tunnel that rtially caved in during a 1,500-

A 100-foot section of a Metro Rail ed Line subway tunnel adjacent to e freeway collapsed Friday when e raced through construction ma-ials inside it.

The subway line is part of a 150le rail grid planned for Los geles. Mayor Tom Bradley on turday inaugurated the first retch of the system, a 22-mile ectric commuter train line be-

"I doubt that it (closure) will

Dan Wynkoop, who owns Moun-

in West Off-Road, a company that ills accessories for 4-wheel-drive

ehicles, said the Little Deer Creek pad is a popular spot for off-road

nthusiasts and when customers ave asked where they can go, he

as recommended Little Deer

Wynkoop is also a mountain biyclist and Little Deer Creek is one

"I have a problems with any ublic land closure. Before long nere's nowhere to go," he said.

He added that he realizes in all

roups there are those who cause

roblems, but he said most people

f his favorite bike trails.

espect the land.

er happen," he said."

ery year.

Long Beach. The tunnel blaze broke out shortly before 2 a.m. Friday and portions still smoldered Saturday after-

The cause remained unknown, but deputy Fire Chief Ray Rojo said there were no indications of arson. Six workers in a nearby tunnel smelled smoke when the fire broke out and escaped unharmed. Damage was put at $5 million.

About 250 feet of the tunnel runs under the freeway, which is part of U.S. Highway 101. The portion under the freeway is surrounded by an 8-foot-thick band of chemically treated concrete or grout; the failed portion was not. Officials said that made all the difference: the cave-in stopped just 10 feet from the freeway.

LIBERIA: CANYON:

(Continued from Page A1) (Continued from Page A1) and Catholic Relief Services, have veral years. begun distributing rice to residents Clayborn, who said he has heard who have been eating roots and sidents' complaints, is undecided leaves because of food shortages. 1 the issue, which surfaces nearly

> The rice had been stored since June in warehouses where it was deposited by the United Nations. U.N. staff members were pulled out of Liberia after refugees housed in their compound were attacked by some of Doe's troops.

U.N. spokesman Francois Giuliani said about eight masked soldiers killed a guard and abducted about 30 people.

One of the U.N. warehouses was looted by Doe's soldiers, but a second was opened to the relief agencies. They distributed its contents to the needy while the government provided protection. Checkpoints, created throughout the city as the government defensive position has deteriorated, were more relaxed on Saturday. Soldiers the only East European country where the ruling Communists won democratic elections. Threats of escalating strikes forced the resignation July 7 of President Petar Mladenov, a reform Communist, and protests continue by activists seeking a full reckoning with the past. Concern that a government ham-strung by protest would not be able to deal with pressing economic problems added to the pessimism in It has had to suspend payments of all but interest on the $10 billion debt. An estimated 60 percent of industry is unprofitable and unemployment is growing. Nowhere does the connection be-waiesa saiu: pared for ... the work that we come after the abolition of com

Even Czechoslovaks, left wit relatively healthy economy, having trouble with economic justments. Food prices were creased 25 percent on July 11. Rents and energy costs scheduled to rise in the fall, lowed by total price decontrol accelerated conversion to prienterprise early next year. "I don't know what I'll do things go on like this," said sioner Libuse Klementova. East Germans are assured relatively quick prosperty throunion with West Germany, but bracing for short-term turmoil.

SOVIETS:

(Continued from Page A1) goals rather than the country's dayto-day affairs. Before Gorbachev's reforms began, any high government position

was secondary to the official's standing in the Communist Party. Until Saturday, it was understood that combination with a high party position was an indication of a government official's power. "The new composition of the Politburo underscores that the party fully breaks with the former practice when it was organically built into the command and administrative system, and was on the top of the hierarchy," said Ivan Frolov, the editor of the party newspaper

Ryzhkov, Kryuchkov and Yazov remain members of the 412-member Central Committee. Shevardnadze, however, does not. Shevardnadze and Gorbachev adviser Alexander N. Yakovlev, a member of Gorbachev's Presidential Council, said during the congress that they did not see the need to remain on the Politburo. Gorbachev's traditionalist rival, Yegor K. Ligachev, was trounced by Ivashko in his bid for the party's No. 2 job and announced he was going home to Siberia to write a

Prayda and a new Politburo mem-

The leader of the radical reform wing, Boris N. Yeltsin, quit the party on the day before the congress ended, and some of the country's most prominent reformers quickly joined him.

Gorbachev expressed "contempt" for those who quit the party, but acknowledged that the Communists were facing the beginning of a

Orem Elderly Home

Let me show your loved ones my loving, tender care.

Frolov said that in addition to heads of party organizations in multiparty system.

Soviet republics, himself, Gorbe ev and Ivashko, the new Polit will include: —Alexander S. Dzasokhov former ambassador to Syria currently chairman of the Supr

Soviet parliament's Internation Affairs Commission. He will responsible for party ideology. -Yuri Prokofiev, the Mos Communist Party chief, a job in the past has entitled the ho to Politburo status. Prokofiev known as a moderate reformer.

—Galina Semyonova, editor chief of "Peasant Woman" m zine. She will be responsible women's issues.

-Gennady Yanayev, who beca head of the Central Council Trade Unions this year after la unrest began spreading through country. He will be responsible international affairs.

Oleg Shenin, the party leader the vast Krasnoyarsk region of eria. His will handle organizati -Igor Stroyev, elevated last to the party's secretariat by bachev. He will be responsible farm issues.

Boris Gidaspov, the Lening party chief whom reformers pect of being a hard-liner tryin undermine Gorbachev, was ele a national party secretary.

